BROOM CORN PRICES STIFFEN.

Farmers Generally Holding Out for $125 Per Ton.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Charleston, III., Jan. 5.- The broom-corn market which has been quiet here the past month, took fresh life last week. Many Eastern buyers were here, but they had to get their supplies from the warehouses, as the few farmers who yet hold their crops refuse to sell for less than $125 per ton. One crop was sold during the week at $110. To-day eight carloads were shipped, it is thought that the buying will become more general soon.
